

Legal Design Mindset

The legal design mindset means:

- We put away our expectations about what will happen.
- We are curious to understand facts and problems in depth.
- We open ourselves up to new possibilities.
- We embrace constraints.
- We ask simple questions.
- We say goodbye to traditional expectations about “how things work.”
- We move from the abstract to the concrete; from problem finding, to problem framing, to problem solving.
- We plan our work around our users and make their needs and goals our map of inspiration for decision making.
